“This is very hard to discuss. The police told me tonight that the bodies of the children have started to come out of the school. Their parents were able to be with them all day and tonight to make positive identification.”

- Brian Williams, NBC News

Let's look at one parent's experience, based on Naomi Zeveloff 's article in the Jewish Daily Forward published December 26, 2012.

Noah Pozner's Family Remembers and Mourns

Noah was the youngest child massacred at Sandy Hook Elementary School on December 14, when 20-year-old gunman Adam Lanza first killed his mother, Nancy Lanza, and then shot his way into the school and slayed 20 first grade students and six staff members, including the principal. Noah was hit multiple times. He was the first child to be buried, on December 17 in a funeral overseen by Rabbi Shaul Praver of Congregation Adath Israel of Newtown.

For the following six nights, the family sat shiva at a friend's house, which could better accommodate the dozens of

According to this article, Noah Pozner was the youngest child massacred, thought to be the only Jewish child, the first victim to be buried and he suffered the greatest number of bullet wounds. Initially these were reported to be eleven; the number later was revised but was not disclosed for privacy reasons.

When Veronique took Governor Dannel Malloy to see her son, lying in his casket, a cloth covered the place where the lower half of his face had been.

To Sum it Up:

- Veronique rushed to the school and ran to the fire house, quickly locating her daughters Arielle and Sophia, and her estranged husband Lenny. Noah could not be found.
- For hours she sat in the fire house, alone, waiting.
- When nuns, priests, ministers and a rabbi showed up she knew “that the news would be absolutely catastrophic.”
- Finally an official announcement was made: 20 child fatalities.
- She wanted to place a blanket on Noah but parents were told it was a crime scene and they could not go.

Let's look at Veronique at the fire house the day of the incident at Sandy Hook. They are taken from video footage.

In the video we see a Connecticut State Police Officer, thought to be Lt. Paul Vance, handing Veronique a cell phone.

She becomes visibly upset, holds her hand to her mouth and hands the officer the phone. It could only be Noah she was looking at, right?

To Sum it Up:

- Jewish Daily Forward said Veronique ran to the fire house and found Lenny, Sophie and Arielle right away.
- Son Michael stands beside Veronique with his girlfriend as she apparently identifies Noah from the officer's cell phone, then walks away.
- A still image from the outdoor fire house footage shows Lenny.
- Photographs show Lenny leaving the fire house with Sophie and Arielle.
- Jewish Daily Forward says Veronique was alone inside the fire house for hours waiting to learn Noah's fate.
- Veronique learned of his death with the official announcement.

Questions

- Why did Zeveloff not mention that Veronique looked at a cell phone photograph? If it was not a picture of Noah, why was she so upset?
- What happened to Michael? Why was his presence at the fire house never mentioned in the Jewish Daily Forward article?

- Naomi Zeveloff was careful to include details in her article, such as Noah's 6-year-old cousin Ethan eating his macaroni and green peas.
- Yet she neglected to mention Michael's presence at the fire house or Veronique looking at the officer's phone.

In “A Short Quiz” We see that Lynn and Chris McDonnell were filmed and also photographed in a green screen area.

The “money shot” appeared in publications across the country, indeed the world.

Footage of Veronique Pozner looking at the cell phone was taken in the same area as the McDonnell footage.

I found the following high quality photo of Veronique taken here. Could it be that “they” were going to go with the cell phone pictures identification story at first and this was to be used? Speculation, I know.

To Sum it Up:

- The Medical Examiner's Excellent Photographs were used to allow parents to identify their children.
- Apparently these excellent photos were viewed on cell phones with 4" average screens.
- Brian Williams said that parents were on site all day and into the night so that positive identification could be made.
- The Connecticut State Police notified parents that their children were "officially" dead in the early hours of Saturday 12/15/2012, as evidenced by the following typical report stating parents were notified at 1:40 am Saturday.

ACTION TAKEN:

On the evening of 12/14/2012 I was ordered to report to the command post at the Sandy Hook Volunteer Fire Department. Upon arrival I was directed to make the death notification of [REDACTED] 01 02 03 12 to his parents, [REDACTED] 01 02 03 12. Also assigned to assist me with this assignment was specialist from the American Red Cross, Wayne Dailey and State Police Chaplain, Father Kevin Donovan.

Daily, Father Donovan, and I drove from the command post in my assigned cruiser (bearing CT registration 988UTZ) to the [REDACTED] 01 02 03 12 residence located at [REDACTED] 01 02 03 12. On 12/15/2012 at approximately 0140 hours I met with [REDACTED] 01 02 03 12 at their residence. [REDACTED] 01 02 03 12 were formally informed that their son [REDACTED] 01 02 03 12 had positively been identified via photographs and was confirmed deceased. We remained with the [REDACTED] 01 02 03 12 family at their residence for a period of time before returning to the command post.

Newtown Police Officers, Traumatized And Not Working, At Risk Of Losing Pay

AP | By MICHAEL MELIA

This article appeared December 26, 2012

The impact of a traumatic event, especially something as horrific as these officers witnessed in Newtown, not only constitutes a severe psychological injury but a physical one as well. Just as in the medical damage sustained in a force incident, the officer exposed to severe trauma experiences dramatic consequences to the body. – John Azar Dickens, Ph.D. in Law Enforcement Today
January 2, 2013

Police car arrives on scene at Sandy Hook school and stops at exactly 09:45:18 a.m. on 12/14/12 (per dash cam). This video is labeled 00055705 in the state evidence file.

Snack time!

So let's get this straight. At about 12:21 pm, while people remained in the building unaccounted for (e.g. Nurse Sally Cox, who was found in the closet around 1:00 pm), and after seeing carnage requiring counseling, early retirement and millions of dollars in compensation, Police appetites weren't affected. The sight of piles of bloody six-year-olds won't keep an officer from his dinner....

He also appeared in the Sandy Hook Chorus at the Super Bowl six weeks later. Coincidence?
